General English - Advanced

CRICOS COURSE CODE 0100955

Course Description

This is a 14-week Advanced level General English course.

The General English Advanced course focuses on everyday functional English and facilitates learner understanding of the language, communication and conventions used in an English-speaking country. The course aims to provide students with a learning environment that is as close as possible to common everyday situations in Australia and is also designed around common student-based requirements.

The General English – Advanced course is made up of 12 units of study, each of which is delivered over a week. Levels of difficulty increase over the duration of the course to assist students to develop their skills and to be more confident and fluent in English.

Target market

The profile of the target student group is as follows:

- Age group: 18 and above
- Nationality: Students come from a range of overseas countries.
- Language level – The target group for this course students who have achieved a pass grade at Upper intermediate level General English. Students may undertake the FIC English placement test to demonstrate this level of English language ability.
- Aims: The target group is seeking to develop their English language skills so as to be able to communicate effectively in a range of situations.
- Experience: The target group may have little or no understanding of the Australian way of life or cultural expectations.

Qualification

Students who partially complete General English Advanced course are provided a certificate and transcript. The documentation indicates the number of weeks studied and the English language ability the student has achieved for each of the four components of language learning. The level of language ability indicated aligns with the levels in the Common European Framework of Reference.

Delivery Methods

The course is delivered via face to face training and independent study. The following delivery methods are implemented during face to face delivery depending on the subject matter: teacher presentations and demonstrations, individual tasks, case studies, research, role plays, practical demonstrations, discussions and group work. Each week, the students are provided opportunities to negotiate meaning with a partner, a small group, the class as a whole and the teacher. This negotiation can occur in structured or unstructured settings. Each week students also have a new topic to negotiate, with changing contexts and expectations with regard to register and style. Students also undertake independent study and assessment activities in addition to scheduled classes. Examples of activities include undertaking homework set by trainers, research, reading, practicing applying knowledge and skills learnt in class, and preparing for and undertaking out of class assessment tasks.

Assessment Methods

Assessment is ongoing, based on student participation and language proficiency in all four skill areas (reading, writing, listening and speaking). Assessment methods will include: Short answer questions/ written tasks, presentations, demonstrations of verbal language skills that are observed by the assessor, research, reports and projects. Formative assessment opportunities are provided each week and students receive feedback from teachers on performance. Summative assessments are scheduled every four weeks.

Course Duration
